Top Places to Find Your Mr. or Mrs. Right

Places, Circumstances or Events to Find Your Love at Last:

Remember, the whole phenomenon of online meeting and dating is fairly new in comparison to how it's been done for millennia. So here are some examples of creative and traditional places, circumstances and events that create opportunities for you to find your Mr. or Mrs. Right or at the very least, put you in action towards the direction that you want to go. From your efforts of taking action you may not meet your ideal mate in any of these ways but what you're doing is telling the universe loud and clear that you're ready for the love of your life.

Grocery Stores	Especially specialty or health oriented grocery stores are best because they may be connected to one of your search outlines. People with health values tend to shop at better quality markets like Whole Foods, Sprouts and Follow Your Heart. Or if you want your ideal mate to be Asian or appreciate Asian food and culture, you might try stores like 99 Market and Galleria Market.
Dog Parks or Popular Dog Paths	What better place to find your love candidate then through one of your "kids". My Jim, since he's been with me, has said that he had no idea what having a dog with you will do to the ease of finding a pretty girl. Especially if it's a cute, small dog like one of our Maltese's. It must be the natural maternal instincts that take over to make a total stranger come right over to you and begin to interact with you over your dog. So they become a natural conversation starter in all situations.
Restaurants	Don't be afraid to go to a restaurant by yourself once in a while. It makes you more open to the opportunity to meet someone. But if you need a posse, make it with people that don't look like your significant other. Especially if you're sitting in a fairly crowded or cramped restaurant, you can see what other people are ordering and comment how good it looks to break the ice to a possible conversation. Remember, even if they are right for you or are currently available, they have friends too!

Philanthropic and Charitable Events	Now we're really cooking! You may be attending a charitable event that benefits a cause that you really believe in. Maybe your future Mr. or Mrs. Right has the same passion as you and he or she is just waiting to meet you. So say yes to that next charity function. The worse that could happen is a great dinner out and a tax write-off.
Charitable Walks and Runs	Now this could be a double threat. Finding someone who is passionate about your cause and has a strong value in health. If you're a guy who has had a female member of your family who has been affected by cancer that primarily affect women and you supporting her recovery by doing a charitable walk. What's the likelihood that a female walker will be there as well?
Ski Lift Lines	Well lines in general are always an advantage. But ski lift lines are more focused on someone who likes at least one interest of yours, skiing and possibly one value, health. So the next time you begin to complain about the long lines to get to the top, think opportunity.
Lines	Bank lines, grocery lines, ticket lines, you get the idea. You got a human who isn't too preoccupied or busy to talk, what a great opportunity for a mini-conversation.
Golf Driving Range &amp; Pro Shop	Hitting golf balls at a driving range can be a great place to connect with someone who is passionate about the game as you are or just passionate about being outdoors and active. There are times in between driving the ball where you can get bits of conversation into the mix. And you can always meet up in the pro shop later to continue that conversation.
Film Festivals	Like I said earlier, a first date to a movie is not a good idea, but a film festival is quite different. You have parties, mixers and lots of time space between movies to connect with someone who may have an interest in the type of films being shown that day.
Baseball Games	The word on the street is that women go there to meet guys and guys like a girl who likes to be at sporting events. Besides with all that space of time between innings and pitches, it's a great place that's conducive to conversation.
It's Just Lunch	Yes, this is a matchmaking service that specializes in putting you together with someone over lunch but remember, you know who you are and what you want. So when they have you fill out a profile, it will be a piece of cake!

Volunteer Work	You'd be surprised who you'll meet at a volunteer situation. It's great networking in general but wouldn't it be great to do some good in the world and meet the love of your life as a bonus. Jim and I would help feed the homeless once a month for a while. Most of the work is moving bags and packaged food from one part of the table to another so skilled help is not necessary. We noticed lots of pretty single girls who would have loved to meet a helpful male volunteer (that's what we call a hint ☺ )
Apple Store	You'd be surprised how many people gather at the Apple Store to look, ask questions and take one the many free classes they offer. Now if you're a baby boomer looking for someone special, these free classes are mostly made up of people 50 years and older learning how to use the latest mobile gadget. If one of you top values in learning or intelligence or continual improvement, well you might be meeting someone who has similar values at one of the classes. The worst thing that would happen by going to class is that you'll learn about one more app that you can put into your I Pad.
Adult Learning or College Continuing Education Classes	Wow, this is a big one. You can possibly meet someone who may have multiple values and belief's as you do and you leave with an education. Win, win to me! I mentioned earlier in this chapter about cooking classes and meeting people there. Well back in the day when Jim owned a restaurant and cooking school, every few months they would offer a singles only cooking class where the class was designed for everyone to have a chance to cook together before you actually sit down and enjoy what you made together. Besides being lots of fun, you can learn a lot about people's character and personality make up from cooking and food preparation. In fact, Jim would share some of those personality traits with the class prior to starting the class. Maybe if we're nice to him, he'll bring back that class during our next weekend "Find the Love of Your Life" workshop.

Religious/Spiritual Singles Events and Outings	Every good size church will usually have a singles event planned every month or so. Agape the non-denominational church run by Rev. Michael Beckwith in Los Angeles, California has singles mixers on a regular basis and periodically they'll have ski trips and other outings. This is true for many of the Christian Churches as well and if this fits within your spiritual beliefs, then this could be a great opportunity to find someone that fits your profile. If you currently belong to a smaller congregation that can't support a single organization or the numbers of single is too small to offer much choice, look for a larger, mega-church in your city that would be able to support such an organization.
Meetup.com	Meetup.com has a variety of events in a neighborhood near you. Once again, it's a great opportunity to stretch you to learn new things and meet new people. Remember it's about putting yourself out there in the world.

So bottom line, you can't find Mr. or Mrs. Right sitting on your sofa at home unless you think the UPS guy is your right match. Even online dating eventually puts you out in the real world. So commit to breaking some cocooning habits and get out there and see the world. Even if the love of your life is not out there yet, you'll have more fun being among the living!

Speaking of On-Line Dating...

Popular On-Line Dating Sites to Use:

I've included the most popular dating sites as well as more specific to cultural, age and religious belief websites. The larger more popular websites like Match.com include these same cultural, ages and religious belief specifics as well but if for instance your belief is very strong in one particular religion, culture or age preference, the specific, overall smaller website may suit you better. For instance many of my love clients who are Jewish have found much success on Jdate.com even though they were on Match.com as well. So you can do the same and join one large site like Match.com and one smaller, more specific dating site if that applies to you. One word of caution to the person new to dating online, join only one online dating site at a time. When you're a new member you will be overwhelmed with requests to meet at the beginning because in the words of another client of mine, “you are fresh meat!” I suggest sticking to one site at first to prevent overwhelm and sucking the joy out of your search efforts because it begins to feel like work.

Match.com – This was the site that I used to find my “love at last” and has been around the longest and is still the most popular of all the dating sites

ChristianMingle.com – It’s obvious from the name this is a great site for Christian singles looking for other Christian singles. User friendly with many interactive features like prayer requests, Bible study and daily Bible verses. With a growing network of users and over 1 million members currently using the site every month, it is an obvious choice for Christian singles looking for a match.

LDSSingles.com – This website is specific to Mormon or Church of Latter Day Saints (LDS) singles.

Jdate.com – This is the number one site for people of Jewish faith to meet other singles of Jewish faith. If finding a person of Jewish faith is one of your most important beliefs you’ll have an easier time finding and have much more of a selection available to you.

eHarmony.com– Their claim to fame is their scientific approach based on an intensive personality questionnaire to finding love. Also a focus of Christian singles. They claim that 90 couples a day get married as a result of meeting on their site.

Zoosk.com This is the dating site for the new age of dating, syncing seamlessly with social media and mobile devices. Their claim to fame is the unique behavioral Matchmaking capability that improves as you use their website with the theory being that the more use you have the more likelihood that you’ll find exactly what you’re looking for in a match.

BuddhistDatingService.com – “Find Nirvana with some special” is their marketing speak. Once again if being with an individual who’s belief systems follows Buddhism, this may be the right site for you.

BuddhistConnect.com – The largest Buddhist website for dating, social networking and business networking.

BuddhistPassions.com – Largest free dating and social networking site for Buddhist singles.

GreenSingles.com – Yes, it's a place where ecologically minded singles can find like-minded available eco-conscious singles. Once again, this is perfect for the person whose values and beliefs are highly driven by making the Earth a better, more environmentally healthier place.

BlackPeopleMeet.com – The name says it all, this is a website devoted to serving black singles. Though it has a smaller user base than other sites like Match.com and eharmony.com, BlackPeopleMeet is a growing site for exclusively for black and interracial dating.

PlentyofFish.com – POF (as its lovely referred to my enthusiasts) is one of the largest free websites devoted to finding the love of your life. Once again this is a simple to operate website that has a phone friendly app to appeal to our increasing appetite for anything mobile.

SingleParentMeet.com – This name says it all as a place that focuses on singles with kids and as the statistics show, this is a growing segment in the dating world. It takes one possible negative disclosure out of the looking process by addressing it right up front. My husband Jim shared with me his dating experience and found that in the Silicon Valley area of California that was a huge issue to some singles. So he can see the value of the approach this website takes. Now the only thing to address is the question of how many kids and how old.

SeniorPeopleMeet.com – This is a massively growing segment of our population looking for that second or third chance for love that focuses on singles over 55. A few of its unique features is a website that is easy to navigate, audio and video messaging and daily suggestions based on your search criteria

OurTime.com – Another popular 50+ website for mature singles. They also simplify the online dating process so as not to alienate some technology challenge individuals.

JustSeniorSingles.com – This free dating site is also devoted to 50+ mature singles. This site also simplifies the online dating process to make it user friendly especially for some technology challenged seniors.

ChristianMatchmaking.com – Do you want to join a dating site, but you're only interested in dating within the Christian faith? Then this is the place for you. They embrace all branches of Christianity including Catholic, Greek Orthodox and all of the different types of Protestant groups. So if you're looking for someone beliefs being solely Christian in general or if you're looking for a specific type of Christian, this would have a great selection of singles.

CompatiblePartners.net – This is a website devoted to gays and lesbians to find the love of life. Brought to you by the people who brought you eharmony.com, they also use the scientific approach based on an intensive personality questionnaire to finding love

Chemistry.com – This is a website devoted to LGBT (Lesbians, Gays, Bisexuals and Transgender) to help them find their love at last. This site does most of the work for you through strong personality matching results. Members are limited in their ability to search independently through profiles so if you like to do the looking yourself; this may not be the site for you. But they are focused in helping members find long term love relationships.

OKCupid.com – This is a free site that connects LGBT singles for casual meetups to looking for that long term love. As with any free site, you run the risk of meeting people who are less than committed in the search for Happily Ever After

MeninLove.com – This is a local website for gay men to find casual meetups, to dating to finding the love of your life.
